

Investigate Haan, Too

The Honolulu Star-Bulletin recently printed an editorial on Senator Guy M. Gillette's resolution asking for Axis propaganda in the United States, specifically including investigation of alleged Japanese activity in collecting funds and organizing Japanese nationals (aliens) in Hawaii.

The editorial hazarded the guess that the source of Senator Gillette's information leading to the resolution was Kilsoo Haan. From here on we quote the Star-Bulletin verbatim:

It is, we are pretty sure, one Kilsoo Haan, who has been in and around the national capital for several years. He used to live in Hawaii. Now he has stationed himself on the mainland, where he is understood to be registered with state department as a foreign (Korean) agent.

He is listed as the representative of the Sino-Korean People's League.

Kilsoo Haan's statements, allegations and accusations and Senator Gillette's resolution are sufficiently alike in phraseology and general ideas so that the source of the senator's purported information can at least be surmised.

Maybe the requested investigation would be a good thing.

If it is undertaken, it should be accompanied by an investigation of Mr. Kilsoo Haan, his past and present activities, and his means of support as a foreign agent living not uncomfortably in Washington.
